Investigation

Worker killed in Jamaica Plain porch collapse

An investigation is underway after a third-story porch in Jamaica Plain collapsed around 11 a.m. Tuesday, killing a worker and critically injuring another.

The men were both installing decking on a porch at 89 Forest Hills St. when the structure gave way, The Boston Globe reports.

Both workers were immediately transported to area hospitals. The condition of the injured man was not immediately known as of deadline. GLOBE

Thanksgiving

TD Garden feeds the homeless

The TD Garden's philanthropic arm, Garden Neighborhood Charities, kicked off the holiday season Tuesday with its annual fall event, Table of Friends.

For 19 years, the group has partnered with Friends of Boston's Homeless to provide a full Thanksgiving meal served by members of the Boston Bruins, the Boston Celtics and local officials.

Garden Neighborhood Charities says it has donated $50,000 for the homeless in the past five years.

About 1,000 meals were served at Tuesday's event.

New Whole Foods in South End to come with a day spa

Supermarket. Whole Foods is adding a day spa to its new South End food market opening in January.

Cold cuts, coffee — and a bikini wax?

If perusing produce right after getting a mani-pedi sounds like a great Saturday afternoon, you're in luck: A South End site formerly home to The Boston Herald is becoming a Whole Foods, complete with a full day spa.

It will be the first such operation for the 400-store supermarket chain.

The 50,000-square-footspace in the Ink Block development off Harrison Avenue in the South End, is scheduled to open as a market in January. The Herald moved to D Street in the Seaport District in early 2012.

Visit Metro.us to find out more information about the new store.

+ honey spa will offer manicures, waxing, hot shaves and shoe shines, using natural and organic ingredients.

"It's all about convenience," said Heather Mc-Cready, a Whole Foods spokeswoman. "We want to provide the best customer convenience, and in this day and age people are busy. It's a great offer for us to be able to make. It resonates with people."

Four buildings are now under construction at Ink Block, each with retail space A branch of Austin's milk on the ground floor and residences above. Whole Foods did not respond to questions about how many workers would be employed at the new location or the cost of the Ink Block project.

The development includes at least 10 restaurants, 315 apartments and 83 condominiums, said Ted Tye, a managing partner at the Newton-based National Development, which is leading the project. The first apartments are to open in January.

Tye declined to name other retailers expected to lease space in Ink Block. Those announcements, he said, would be made in coming weeks.

Winter — and Thanksgiving — are coming

Thanksgiving might be a travel nightmare for New Englanders, with some areas receiving more than a foot of Holiday travelers should consider moving up Wednesday travel plans if they still can, as travel will be easier earlier in the day, said Alan Dunham, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service.

Parts of Boston could see from 1 inch to 4 inches of snow. Logan Airport might see 1 or 2 inches of slush, while central and western Massachusetts could see up to 14 inches.

The storm will start as rain Wednesday morning, then mix with snow by mid-Wednesday morning, becoming all snow by the afternoon, the Weather Service said Tuesday. Snow could continue until midnight.

"That rain-to-snow line will keep moving until it marches all the way to the coast," said Dunham. DANNY MCDONALD

"It's important not to get hung up on the exact snowfall amount. It's more important to realize the impact this will have, and it will have a really big impact on Wednesday."

Boston. Holiday parties could get cheeky with Butlers in the Buff

Jason Didcott began baring his military-trained body at age 31 to make extra money in college, after serving 15 years in Britain's Royal Navy.

Wednesday, November 26, 2014

The night gig turned into his day job. Now, Didcott is 45 and manages about 1,000 buff butlers across North America and the United Kingdom.

After a trial run with two butlers in Boston, Didcott will formally launch his company in the Hub. Butlers in the Buff will hold Skype auditions Wednesday in the hope of hiring 20 local guys to butler the Boston party scene.

"[They're] not allowed to drink or stay on after a party finishes, not allowed to socialize. We provide a fun service but need to keep it professional and take it seriously," said Didcott.

The butlers are all in their 20s and 30s. "I do miss it," Didcott said, of working parties himself in "costume." "It's a lot of fun. I'm 45 now, so I'm too old, I'm afraid."

"It was my first time doing anything like that. I got a lot of attention, but I got comfortable really quickly," he said.

One might wonder, why would anyone want to hire a Butler in the Buff instead of simply hiring a male stripper?

"Many people don't want their party to be dull, but strippers are just too much for them," said Didcott. "Stripping or dancing is forbidden." MORGAN ROUSSEAU

Boston. Brace yourself for a very painful reminder that 'tis the season to get fat.

Between traveling and holiday parties Bostonians may forget to squeeze in a workout, which wouldn't be such a bad thing if it weren't for the fact that the holidays come with a large serving of butter, sugar and alcohol.

A typical Thanksgiving feast could hold 2,500 to 4,500 calories, says fitness expert Brian Weller, who co-owns and instructs at Barry's Boot-

Barry's Bootcamp sees a dip in member activity during the holiday season, a sign of food-coma sluggishness.

LASIK & Beyond Taking Your Vision To The Next Level

At New England Eye Center, we truly are taking sight to the next level. Thanks to recent advances in laser and lens implant technology, our highly-trained specialists are helping patients of all ages enjoy the type of clearer, more natural vision they desire. Vision for the way we live here in New England!

The holidays have never looked brighter for New England Eye Center patients who are enjoying the 'Vision of their Dreams' thanks to our experienced eye care team.

From providing routine general eye care, to the latest breakthroughs in LASIK laser vision correction - or the recent advancements in ICL technology and Laser Cataract Surgery - our surgeons and staff are committed to making this holiday season the most joyous of all. If you're ready to enjoy the holidays with vision like you've never seen, call our office today to schedule your complimentary screening.

From our all-laser, bladeless LASIK procedure - to exciting developments like our Visian Implantable lens - our commitment to leading edge technology is surpassed only by our dedication to personalized patient care. Patients of New England Eye Center find confidence in knowing we offer experience you can trust and technology you can rely on.

NASA-Approved LASIK - Our all-laser, bladeless LASIK at New England Eye Center has greatly improved results and helped take the fear out of having LASIK. The vast majority of our LASIK and PRK patients now achieve 20/20 vision at distance without glasses or contact lenses. Our method of LASIK is the same type approved for NASA astronauts and military pilots.

Implantable Contact Lens - New England Eye Center is among a select group of practices in the country offering patients the benefits of the Visian Implantable Collamer Lens (ICL). Unlike LASIK, the Visian corrects vision by inserting a delicate intraocular lens-like device atop the eye's natural lens, which is why the Visian is also referred to as the 'Implantable Contact Lens.' All of the refractive surgeons at New England Eye Center are qualified and experienced in performing this brief outpatient procedure to insert the Visian ICL. Because no corneal or other tissue is removed in the Visian ICL procedure, visual recovery is extremely rapid and the ICL can potentially be replaced if the eye's focus changes over time.

Refractive Lens Exchange - If you're frustrated with reading glasses and bifocals, our refractive specialists perform a procedure known as Refractive Lens Exchange. By replacing your eye's aging natural lens with a Intraocular Lens Implant customized specifically for your visual needs - and your lifestyle - allowing you to see better, look younger and never have to worry about developing cataracts!

Laser Cataract Surgery - For seniors experiencing changes in their vision - or who have been diagnosed with a cataract - New England Eye Center is turning the dream of Laser Cataract Surgery into reality. We are currently among only the top 3% of practices in the country to offer patients the added precision and accuracy of Laser Cataract Surgery using OptiMedica® Catalys™ Precision Laser System.

This year, take your vision to the NEXT LEVEL by giving yourself or a loved one the Gift of Sight. Now that's a Gift that keeps on Giving. A blessed New Year from the surgeons and staff of New England Eye Center.

Thanksgiving is tomorrow, and as a resident of this great city there are a lot of things I'm thankful for.

I'm thankful that Boston is a small town in a big city with world-class art, music, culture and dining, all while maintaining a small town charm.

I'm thankful that Drizly will deliver beer to me this holiday season, and Lose It! will tell me how much weight I need to shed after drinking that beer.

I'm thankful November Project gets my ass out of bed in the morning, Runkeeper keeps me on track and Pavement Coffee keeps me awake.

I'm thankful Eastern Standard crafts a deliciously strong "Smash," and Anna's Taqueria has rolled over 5,000 burritos for me.

I'm thankful Boston is a walkable city with an extensive subway system to take you wherever you need to go, with just a "minor delay."

I'm thankful Boston has a super collaborative startup community that has grown by leaps and bounds over the past five years, and going forward will continue to rival New York City and San Francisco.

I'm thankful for the 250,000 college students who keep Boston buzzing and who keep the new ideas percolating.

I'm thankful for city leaders like Tito Jackson who work tirelessly to make Boston a better place to live.

I'm thankful for charities like Rosie's Place, that give our homeless women and children a better life and for Pine Street Inn that will serve a Thanksgiving feast to those who need it most.

Finally, I'm thankful that Boston is a forward-thinking city open to all races, colors, religions and sexual orientations.

I'm thankful to call Boston home.

Rights. Jewish-nation bill frays Israel's delicate social fabric

Israel is poised to pass one of the most divisive laws in its 66-year history, a bill that would declare it the homeland of the Jewish people only — and further alienate its Arab minority.

Political infighting over the measure is already threatening to tear apart Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's governing coalition.

The legislation, which is seen as compromising equality by differentiating between Jewish and non-Jewish citizens in enshrining some symbolic rights to the Jewish people, could also have long-term practical ramifications for jurisprudence.

Israeli democracy and

Netanyahu says it is essential to protecting Israel's identity against those questioning its right to

Missouri governor orders more troops to Ferguson

Unrest. Violent protests and looting flared after the St. Louis County grand jury's decision.

Missouri's governor ordered hundreds more National Guard troops on Tuesday to the St. Louis suburb rocked by rioting after a white policeman was cleared in the fatal shooting of an unarmed black teenager, while the local mayor said the governor did not do enough to protect businesses from looting.

Attorneys for the family of Michael Brown, the 18-year-old shot to death in Ferguson by Officer Darren Wilson in August, condemned as biased the grand jury process that led to Monday's decision not to bring criminal charges against Wilson.

About a dozen Ferguson buildings burned overnight

National Guard

Missouri Gov. Jay Nixon told reporters that a total of 2,200 National Guard troops were being deployed in the St. Louis area.

and 61 people were arrested on charges including burglary, illegal weapons possession and unlawful assembly, police said. Police said protesters fired guns at them, lit patrol cars on fire and hurled bricks into their lines.

Criticizing the governor's response to the unrest, Ferguson Mayor James Knowles said the National Guard "was not deployed in enough time to save all of our businesses."

"The decision to delay the deployment of the National Guard is deeply concerning,"

Knowles told a news conference. "We are asking that the governor make available and deploy all necessary resources to prevent the further destruction of property and the preservation of life in the city of Ferguson."

The unrest came despite calls by President Barack Obama and others for police and protesters to exercise restraint. REUTERS

'Wizard of Oz' movie relics sell for millions of dollars

How much would you pay for a musty old pile of fur worn by a grown man under sweltering lights? OK, so maybe that pile of fur is actually the costume worn by Bert Lahr as the Cowardly Lion in "The Wizard of Oz," but still, it can't smell that great. The costume in question fetched $3 million at Bonham's Turner Classic Movies auction recently. Also a big-ticket item — and possible less smelly? The iconic piano from "Casa-blanca," which went for $3.4 million. While impressive, neither sale bests the record for an auctioned-off movie prop set last year, when the Maltese Falcon statue from, well, "the Maltese Falcon," went for $4 million.

'Exodus: Gods and Kings' (Dec. 12)

What: This is the Ten Commandments story — most famously told in the 1956 Easter staple "The Ten Commandments" — this time with Christian Bale attempting to wipe away memories of Charlton

How populist?: Midwestern audiences ate up tiny religious films such as "God's Not Dead"; in fact, that film made only $40 million less in America than the super-pricey "Noah." Audiences could stay relatively chill on this one, too.

'Annie' (Dec. 19)

What: It has been 32 years

the sometimes blood-curdling stage musical, so here's one with

Quvenzhane Wallis, plus Jamie

How populist?: Movies are rarely tailored to little girls, so maybe don't screw this one up?

What: Chris Rock's third go at directing is an improv-heavy dramedy about a Chris Rocklike movie star (played by Chris Rock) hitting it off with a reporter (Rosario Dawson) the day of his new drama's release. How populist?: Rock made this independently, and it has a rough, handmade quality that could serve as a fresh antidote to the season's studio comedies.

(Dec. 19)

How populist?: These things are bizarrely popular, especially considering how padded out and butt-woundingly long they are. But hey, what's good for star Martin Freeman is good for the world (maybe).

BARRY WETCHER

'The Hobbit: The Battle of the Five Armies'

What: Only five armies? The final chapter in an epic take on a 300page novel intended for children finally comes to a close, and surely it will test how much Benedict Cumberbatch-voiced dragon fighting you can stand before going insane.

What: Meryl Streep, Johnny Depp and a bunch of other popular stars round out Stephen Sondheim's beloved musical, in which fairy tales are mashed together.

How populist?: The only catch is Sondheim is a musical lover's musical writer, though his often difficult and densely written tunes are here tacked onto a very clever pastiche.

PETER MOUNTAIN

Prestige

'Wild' (Dec. 3)

What: Reese Witherspoon portrays Cheryl Strayed, who hiked some 1.100 miles of the Pacific Crest Trail alone. Don't worry: There are a lot of flashbacks, plus a script by Nick Hornby. How prestigious?: Witherspoon goes back to her indie roots, when she was one of the most exciting budding stars. Her Strayed is not only haunted — with a deeply traumatic history involving death, divorce and drugs — but also hilariously cranky.

'Inherent Vice' (Dec. 12, limited; Jan. 9, wide)

What: Novelist Thomas Pynchon doesn't lend himself well to movies, but if anyone could pull it off it's Paul Thomas Anderson. Joaquin Phoenix plays a hippie P.I. in the '60s on a seriously convoluted case. (No, really: It's practically impossible to follow or summarize.)

How prestigious?: This is so goofy and weird that it will almost certainly be polarizing, even among the critical cognoscenti. The audience for this is specific and small, though those who get it will be passionate.

'The Gambler' (Dec. 19)

What: A remake of one of the '70s grimmest films, this pottymouthed drama (written by "The Departed"'s William Monahan) stars Mark Wahlberg as a self-destructive rich kid who owes a ton of money to three different, scary people.

How prestigious?: Despite a new ending, this keeps the miserable '70s vibe, and Wahlberg — who can be dour in dramas — is as electric here as he is in comedies such as "I Heart Huckabees."

FOX SEARCHLIGHT

WARNER BROS.

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

'Selma' (Dec. 25, limited; Jan. 9, wide)

What: Of course Hollywood has never made a Martin Luther King Jr. movie. On the other hand, the first one was made by a black female filmmaker, the talented Ava DuVernay ("Middle of Nowhere"), with David Oyelowo as MLK.

How prestigious?: This might be the most prestigious film of the year - and, amazingly, it might also be genuinely great. The focus is only on the Alabama voting rights marches in 1965, rather than his whole life, and these narrow biopics tend to be the most rewarding.

Get cozy

Snuggle up

At night, keep the temperature at 68 degrees and add comforters to your bed, says the expert. You'll be warm without breaking the bank. "You save three percent for every degree you dial down your heat," Sherrod says. Of course, this doesn't work as well for when you have to get up.

Save money on bills this winter winter

Tips. HGTV's Egypt Sherrod gets our home ready for icy temps without emptying our wallet.

Do you panic every time you get a gas bill in the winter? This year, make moves to stop stressing — without resorting EGYPT SHERROD to living in Arctic tundra mode. Egypt Sherrod, host of HGTV's "Property Virgins" and a personal finance expert, shows us how to keep heating costs down when the weather outside gets frightful.

Do these now

Fix the plumbing

Insulate your pipes. "This should be high on your list," warns Sherrod. "You don't want your pipes to freeze over."

Give your water heater some TLC

"Once a year, you should completely drain your water heater tank and flush out the sediments," say Sherrod. "It will save you money on your bill because it will make it more efficient." Another tip: Wrap an insulating blanket around your hot water heater to give it extra protection.

Zip up your house

"50 percent of energy wasted in winter months comes from un-insulated walls, floors, ceiling and attics," says Sherrod. "It's like putting a jacket on your house. You wouldn't go outside in five-degree weather without a coat, and you wouldn't want your house to be sitting there without insulation either."

Quick fix

Dress your drapes

Pick up a few yards of insulator fabric and some adhesive Velcro strips. Attach the fabric to your drapes on the window side. And presto! A warmer house in an instant. "My grandmom always did this trick and now it's ingrained in our family — you don't have to be a Martha Stewart to do it," says Sherrod. "If your drapes have an insulating liner, it can cut your heat loss in half."

All winter long

Switch on your ceiling fan

Most people only have ceiling fans spinning when the weather is warm, but they can also benefit you during the colder months. "There is a switch on most that reverse the direction of air flow," Sherrod says. "This blows your heat back down to you instead of going up through the ceiling and roof."

Insta queen: Coco Rocha

Interview. The model on her new art book, taking on motherhood — and maternity wear.

If you're a selfier with just the one default pose (i.e., the pout), then supermodel Coco Rocha might just be able to bring a new look to your expressions armory. Her new black-and-white 2,000-page art book "Study of Pose: 1,000 Poses by Coco Rocha" is a kind of how-to guide to looking photogenic. The 26-year-old, who has graced the covers of Vogue

The 26-year-old, who has graced the covers of Vogue, Harper's Bazaar and W as well as fronting campaigns for YSL and Uniqlo was captured by 100 cameras in a shoot led by New York photographer Steven Sebring back in 2012. Wearing only a simple tan leotard and white leggings, the Canadian model, nicknamed the "Queen of Pose," contorted herself into poses inspired by the likes of Grace Jones and Jessica Rabbit. The project builds upon the success of a viral video in which Rocha does 50 poses in 30 seconds. In fact, Rocha was one of the first models to make a name for herself on social media: She has 1.6 million Instagram followers and growing — along with her baby bump.

Why did you decide to do this book?

I've been told that I model in very different ways compared to other models. I met the photographer Steven Sebring, who has wanted to make an encyclopedia of poses since the '90s, and my husband and I thought it was a great idea. We wanted it to be a reference book, not only for models, but also for the art industry.

You've announced that

How to pose like a pro

Don't always try to take pretty pictures. For some reason, in our "selfie world" we are very insecure and always think that there's this one pose that makes us look amazing. I think it's important to just be able to relax when we take a picture, so don't hesitate to change a look. If you truly want to become a model, know your lights — it's a very important tool. And I always say you should pose all the way to the tips of your fingers and your toes.

[Modeling] is a huge privilege you owe to your mum and dad. A chunk of it definitely comes down to genetics. I still make sure that I'm eating well and sleeping right. For lunch, I usually have a salad, a sandwich and an orange juice. I'm not one of those people who works out every day. When I'm in the mood I'll go to the gym. Also, when I go to work, I give 110 percent; if I'm not sweating at the end of a photo shoot, I feel like I haven't done my job - that's how I remain healthy.

Healy's dedication to his or is irrefutable: The band, formed in 2004 and signed in 2012 ned in 2012, ground it out for 10 years playing free gigs before their ascent to capacity venues such as Brixton Academy, Shepherd's Bush Empire in 🗸 London and The Bowery Ballroom in New York that the band wasn't a fabricated overnight success story, much to Healy's

Healy confides, "I find my alvation in being creative and the pursuit of purity." It's an expression that'll once again divide his critics, but he says, through a final contemplative puff: "I would rather f— up in the media and say silly things than be a part of this conveyor belt. I'm much more myself now than I was at the beginning of the campaign — and I think it makes me more endearing."

Rock 'n' roll is the bottom line for The 1975 frontman

Matthew Healy.

The indie band's lead singer on why playing the cliched rocker isn't an act.

"It's just f-ing go, go, go, I'm going to smoke a joint here to fill the cliche, but it's the only time I can close the door away from everybody else," says a weary-looking Matt Healy.

The lead singer's rock band, The 1975, has pretty much been on a world tour for the past two years, and it's not over yet. It's no surprise that the 25-year-old Londoner is distractedly pacing the trailer in the artists' area at Reading Festival before slumping into the sofa and sparking up a joint.

"People don't really know this but I'm a very ticky person," he explains through a smoke-soaked voice. Does he need the weed to relax? "I don't need it: I don't have that vice. I've always smoked a lot of weed and it's kind of part of my identity," he rebuts, before citing that all too frequently heard comparison to people who enjoy a glass of wine after work.

Healy's defensiveness over his habit stems from "the stigma with smoking weed, especially in the U.K.; it is imbued with the idea of being slightly juvenile," he says. His understandably slightly agitated rebuff continues between tokes: "I've got a big song ["Chocolate" about it; I've been defined by it. If I were a junkie or a drug addict, and I was, like, strung out all the time, I wouldn't be able to do 300 gigs a year."

Whether you advocate for drug legalization or not, the man is not just turning up, he's performing with the bravado of a eulogized rocker. Healy, whose indie rock band - made up of Ross Macdonald, Adam Hann and George Daniel - reached No. 1 in the U.K. with their self-titled debut album in September 2013, is aware that he panders to what he describes as "this flamboyant kind of dandy. There is an element of parody to me, the parody of the rock star and that's kind of who I am, you know. I'm not trying to be anyone else. I'm obviously 25

He knows his wine-swigging antics on stage might earn him some criticism, but as he protests, "People don't want me to go out and be bashful. I don't want to go out and be bashful. What is the f-ing point? I've not worked all my life to come and worry what the whole guest area thinks!" Nor should he. Healy is the palatable side of poprock stardom: a rakelike hedonism without stumbling into The Libertines frontman Pete Doherty's hazy opiate-induced world of missed gigs and police custody.

"I'm from a very middleclass environment, and I was embracing being a left-field artist when I was younger. For me it was all about the music; I didn't get involved with heavy drugs," he says

As image-conscious as the effete-looking singer appears, one wonders whether the self-styled dandyism dressed in skinny black jeans and a crumpled white shirt provocatively undone a button too far, with dishevelled Byronesque hair - doesn't try to divert attention away from the music. "A lot has been documented about me, but not really enough about how everything I do is in the pursuit of music.

"I know there are certain cliches that surround it. but my identity is really ingrained in music," he says.

The first film from French director Alain Resnais, 1959's "Hiroshima Mon Armor" centers on the love affair between a French actress and a Japanese architect in a Hiroshima still recovering from the atomic bomb. Told in the form of a long conversation, it has a major influence on French New Wave. It's presented here in a newly restored digital version.

"Arabian Nights," now in its fourth revival, is becoming something of a holiday tradition in Cambridge. The story of Scheherazade and the five selected tales here have nothing to do with the holidays, of course, but they resonate perfectly with the enchantment and mystery of the season.

Interview. The actress, who's appearing in A.R.T.'s new show, says she picked up a few tips from her character.

American Repertory Theater's latest show is the world premiere of "The Vagina Monologues" playwright Eve Ensler's new play, "O.P.C," which explores ideas of how best to affect change in the world. The mother/daughter duo of Smith and Romi are ostensibly both liberal people interested in protecting the environment, but they go about it in different ways: Smith is running for the Senate, while Romi has no interest in politics and embraces freeganism and dumpster diving. The play seems likely to create debate, particularly in liberal Cambridge. Even the actors have had their issues with it, with Oscar-winner Melissa Leo leaving the play only a few weeks ago. But Olivia Thirlby ("Juno"), who plays Romi, seems pretty passionate about it.

Describe Romi.

Romi defies description. ... She is an informer, an enlightener, a seducer, a mad, passionate, twinkling star.

What is the central conflict?

The central conflict between Smith and Romi is the central conflict of the play, which is we know that we need to change the world that we live in and the structure that we're all encased in. The question is, do we do it by changing the structure from within, or do we do it by changing from outside of it, as in from not participating in it, which is quite radical and very difficult to do? Free food

Did you try any freeganism?

I have. I've done a good deal of research and had some experience doing freegan dives and trash turns.

Did you get anything good?

Yeah, I got tons of good stuff. Tons of citrus and cucumbers, flowers and basil, ginger and a couple Caesar salads.

Did you do that in Boston or in New York? I did that in New York.

and triat in New York.

Did you end up becoming a freeganism advocate? Yes, absolutely. It was inspiring to me to see just how Yes, absolutely. It was inspiring to me to see just how easy it is to get beautiful, fresh food for free.

Did you end up sympathizing with both sides?

I sympathized much more with Romi's side, which is, the system is broken, it can't be fixed, it's inherently flawed and it needs to change.

Since this production is a premiere, has it changed much as you were working on it?

The play changes every single day. It's part of the process when you're mounting a new play. If the writer is present, which they often are, then they're also hearing their play for the first time and wanting to make changes to it. We have lots of cuts and additions and tweaks every day, sometimes whole new scenes. [Laughs]

Letters

A slap in the face to legal immigrants

So Metro is now going to showcase story after story, letter after letter, of all those poor illegal immigrants who have been living for decades illegally in the U.S. and now don't have to worry because even though they committed a crime, Emperor Obama is just going to change the laws they broke. How about some stories of those legal immigrants who did everything legally and paid thousands of dollars for the chance to be an American, only to see line jumpers rejoicing that they weren't stupid enough to do things the right way? And how about a dose of reality? Obama is only doing this because the Democrat base is starting to dwindle and he needs to create a new voting class dependent on government handouts, which is what this amnesty is. The Republicans will kick and flail, but their base wants cheap labor, so they won't stop it. The only people who seem to come out losers are -wait for it — the America taxpayer. FRANK DIXON, VIA EMAIL

It's difficult to read all the talk about illegal immigrants (I don't use the word "undocumented"; it's just a fancy word for illegal that the media prefers to use) "coming out of the shadows" from the difficult situations that they put themselves in, because after they cheated the system, they should be glad that they are allowed to stay in the country at all! And some of them even have the gall to say that the immigration reform is not enough, and they demand more concessions! That's like someone breaking into your home, and then demanding that you feed them, because they're entitled to be there! What about the legal immigrants, who spent years going through the honest route and taking all the proper channels to become residents or citizens? Were we just wasting our time? Do we get a refund? NFL power rankings | by Matt Burke

Patriots (9-2)

Here's an idea of just how hot the Patriots are right now. Detroit lost to our No. 2 team in the rankings, the Cardinals, by eight points on the road in Week 11. In Week 12, Detroit was shredded by the Pats on the road by 25 points.

Cardinals (9-2)

No. 3

Packers (8-3)

Broncos (8-3)

The Broncos found themselves down 14-3 to a legit Miami team but Denver's line picked things up and allowed Peyton Manning to throw four TDs.

Eagles (8-3)

A blowout win at home over the Titans isn't going to wow anyone, but give the Eagles some credit for taking care of business against the dregs.

No. 6

Cowboys (8-3)

No. 7

49ers (7-4)

The Niners host Seattle in the "Couch Pass-out Classic." Take a fireball shot around 9 p.m. and see if either Seattle or San Fran can break double-digits.

No. 8

Seahawks 着 (7-4)

No. 9

Lions (7-4)

No team is hanging with the Pats right now, so we'll give Detroit a pass for laying an egg in Foxboro. Detroit has a soft schedule the rest of the way.

No. 10

Bengals (7-3-1)

Since a midseason hiccup in which they gave up 43 and 37 points to the Pats and Panthers, respectively, Cincy's "D" has kept teams in the 20s.

No. 11

Colts (7-4)

The Colts could very well be a division fraud, beefing up on victories thanks to the fact that they play in the lowly AFC South.

SPORTS

No. 12

Ravens (7-4)

We used this space last week to rag on old man Steve Smith. Well, the bye week gave Sr. a chance to rest his legs as he torched the Saints.

No. 13

Browns (7-4)

Brian Hoyer hasn't posted a quarterback rating over 100.0 in the past four weeks but don't expect Johnny Football to come to the rescue.

NHL. Bruins rookie forward Pastrnak will be learning on the fly in 2014-15

He only played 7:53, 10 shifts, in his NHL debut, but Bruins rookie forward David Pastrnak has already left his mark. By appearing in Boston's 3-2 overtime loss against Pittsburgh on Monday at TD Garden, he became the youngest player to compete in the league so far this season. The Bruins' first-round pick (25th overall) from the Czech Republic was born on May 25, 1996, which makes him roughly the age of a high school senior or college freshman.

Including the Penguins game, the B's have scored two goals or less in six of their last seven contests. With nagging injuries to David Krejci, Chris Kelly and Brad Marchand (who returned vs. Pittsburgh), GM Peter Chiarelli felt like it was time to give Pastrnak his chance after the prized rookie got hurt at the end of training camp - causing him to miss the start of Boston's regular Pastrnak is listed as 6-footeven but is only 167 pounds, so he needs to add some size to battle in the corners and in front of NHL nets. Still, his talent jumps off the ice.

"I thought he had good legs and so I put him on a couple lines here and obviously you can see that he's a pretty dynamic player," Bruins head coach Claude Julien said.

In 17 games with Providence, Pastrnak had showed the ability to make a quick adjustment to the North American style of play (keep in mind this is his first season in the U.S.). He had five goals while his 13 assists, 18 points and plus-12 rating all led the team. Finding the right time to call up a young player is always a tough call. If it's too early or he doesn't play much, you risk stunting his development. In this case, the Bruins felt like it was worth it since they were getting so little in terms of offense from their bottom two forward lines and they had a severe lack of creativity among the forwards.
